

NO-NAIL BOXES supports energy innovation with Solarcells

Wiltz, 23 January 2024

NO-NAIL BOXES, the Luxembourgish manufacturer of folding boxes in plywood and steel, is proud to have participated in a packaging project in collaboration with Solarcells, the first Luxembourgish manufacturer of photovoltaic panels.

During the inauguration of Solarcells' new factory, NO NAIL BOXES was recognized for its contribution with a packaging solution: 100% reusable wooden boxes, optimized for safety and sustainability. These boxes not only provide superior protection for solar panels but also represent a significant advancement in reducing the ecological footprint through their reusability.

Designed to withstand the rigors of transportation and storage, NO-NAIL BOXES' foldable boxes offer exceptional durability, thereby reducing costs and environmental impact associated with frequent packaging replacement. They are also customizable to meet specific customer needs, ensuring optimal protection for a variety of products.

This partnership with Solarcells demonstrates our ability to innovate in the field of sustainable packaging. NO NAIL BOXES is committed to playing a key role in supporting Luxembourg's energy transition by providing solutions that are not only environmentally friendly but also cost-effective and efficient.

NO-NAIL BOXES is located in Wiltz and has been manufacturing folding boxes made of plywood and steel for the industry since 1961. Every year, some 450,000 boxes, 95% of which are custom-made, leave its production workshop. Certified ISO 9001, ISO 14001, ISO 27001, AEO, PEFC, CSR, SuperDrecksKëscht fir Betriber and Sécher a Gesond mat System, NO-NAIL BOXES is integrated in the packaging division of the ALIPA Group, a Luxembourg-based specialist in industrial packaging and lifting, which has a total of about 150 employees.
